LOW INERTIA

THE KILLERS

Hometown: Las Vegas, Nevada Genre: Rock

With the electroclash movement of the early millennium dwindling away by early 2004, it would seem fitting that a rock band armed with insatiable hooks and unstoppable dance beats would pick up where The Rapture left off and take over the airwaves. As the biggest new stars of 2005, The Killers have been touring the world without end since the release of 2004's Hot Fuss. The critically acclaimed album has topped the charts since its release last summer due in no small part to their inescapable smash hits "Somebody Told Me" and "Mr. Brightside."

THE LOCUST

Hometown: San Diego, CA Genre: Punk Rock

The Locust is San Diego's own loved and hated stepchildren of modern music, existing to terrorize, challenge, and re-define your preconceived lines that separate noise from traditional "music." They also host a pedigree of "who's who?" in San Diego, having shared members with other favorite acts such as The Album Leaf, Cattle Decapitation, and more.

LOUIS XIV

Hometown: San Diego, CA Genre: Rock

Not familiar with terms "neo-glam," eh? Then you better check out Louis XIV as they are the embodiment of this new movement. Quite possibly the closest thing we'll get to the reincarnation of T-Rex, the band brings a 70's vibe to modern rock music, complete with jangly guitars, shout-sung choruses, and big sunglasses to boot.

METHOD MAN

Hometown: Staten Island, NY Genre: Hip-Hop

Who better to hand you the power of the Wu than Johnny Blaze himself? When taking a break from movie careers, countless collaborations, and trying to sell you diamonds, The Ticalition Station still manages to get in a live show here and there. It promises to be a blazing show, literally.

THE PIXIES

Hometown: Boston, Massachusetts Genre: Rock

What can be said of The Pixies that has not been said already? The band's first three albums, Come On Pilgrim, Surfer Rosa, and Doolittle, are must-haves for anybody that considers themselves a fan of rock music. The band was the first to experiment with the quiet-verse, booming chorus concept that bands like Nirvana, Weezer, and Green Day relied on as they pumped single after single onto MTV and the radio. After being name-checked by just about every notable alternative artist of the 90's, a generation of loyal fans, thirsty for live shows developed around The Pixies who had unceremoniously disbanded in 1992. The band reunited nearly 12 years later to a sold-out world tour that just doesn't seem to end.

HOT FESTIVALS

Five Festivals Worth a Trip

Lollapalooza
JULY 23RD-24TH / CHICAGO / $15 FOR BOTH DAYS
 Who: Rites, the Arctic Monkeys, Green Day, Kanye West, Sade, The Roots, Diddy, Dead & Co. for corn, the sandy beaches, the Brian Johnson Memorial
 Where: The city's lakefront Grant Park
 Lowdown: The granddaddy of all-rock traveling festivals returns after last year's cancellation - it's back in one place this time. But a members-of-all-rock lineup shows that the event's original idea still works in a different time.

Essence Music Festival
JULY 26TH-28TH / NEW ORLEANS / $15-$75
 Who: Kanye West, Alicia Keys, Anika Noni Rose, Beyoncé, U2, The Roots, Robert Buckland, Fantasia, En Vogue, Funky Bunch
 Where: Louisiana Superdome
 Lowdown: The season's biggest urban music festival brings together several generations of artists and includes a commemorative performance by Kanye West.

Street Scene
JULY 26TH-28TH / SAN DIEGO / $45 PER DAY, $85 FOR BOTH DAYS
 Who: The White Stripes, the Killers, Plain, the Black Eyed Peas, Flaming Lips, Method Man, Social Experiment
 Where: A huge open space next to the Qualcomm Stadium
 Lowdown: Though this festival in your wild bedrock has just signed a formal contract to remain in the past, this year's edition will target young concertgoers with rock and hip-hop acts.

Intonation Music Festival
JULY 30TH-31TH / CHICAGO / $10 PER DAY, $12 FOR BOTH DAYS
 Who: The Decemberists, Brockers Social Scene, A.C. Newman, Death From Above 1975, Evanescence, The Roots
 Where: Chicago's Union Park
 Lowdown: The silver-tube folk at Pitchfork Media curbed this new festival, with a band roster that will pass any record-store clerk's Newness test.

AmsterJam
AUGUST 20TH / NEW YORK / $45
 Who: Ben and Chad Presner, Snoop Dogg, Hot Joe, Garbage, 311, Mor Deo
 Where: Randall's Island, under the Triborough Bridge
 Lowdown: Can the state-up-escape sustain an entire festival? The Holbrook-sponsored AmsterJam aims to find out, with collaborations such as Snoop Dogg rapping with the best rock club DJ, Festival creator Jordan Cotter may also perform.

Flaming Lips Have A Ball, White Stripes Paint The Stage Red At Street Scene
 08.01.2005 7:03 PM EDT

Black Eyed Peas, Pixies, Louis XIV also play San Diego festival.

SAN DIEGO — With a few exceptions, such as the gang signs waving in front of Snoop Dogg and the mosh pit for Social Distortion, the San Diego Street Scene was Coachella on concrete.

Now in its 21st year, the festival reinvented itself over the weekend with a sprawling new location and beefed-up, ultra-hip lineup.

With the White Stripes, the Pixies, the Flaming Lips and 35 other bands spread out on four stages over two nights, there were definite similarities to Southern California's other annual festival, only without the soft fields on which to rest your bottom after long walks from stage to stage.

In some ways, however, Street Scene, which drew 40,000 Friday and 35,000 Saturday, was actually superior to Coachella. The lineup on each stage had more defined themes so people wouldn't have to wander (punk fans, for example, could watch Social D, Flogging Molly, Rise Against and the Adolescents perform one after another on Friday). Massive video screens and widescreen TVs made viewing easier for those in the beer tents. Carnival rides and inflatable toys provided entertainment between shows. And the stages were all angled away from each other, leaving little sound interference.

The biggest hitch, for fans and bands, was fighting the horrific traffic to the Qualcomm Stadium parking lot. Southern California freeways are already typically congested on Friday afternoons, but for those traveling from Los Angeles, the two- to three-hour drive took closer to seven.

As a result, the tardy Autolux missed their 4:30 p.m. slot, the Black Eyed Peas started an hour late for the same reason, and Garbage barely made their start time after suffering what singer Shirley Manson joked onstage was the kind of trip that can drive a band apart. (Come on, festival promoters, did we learn nothing from Woodstock? Where were the helicopters?)

White Stripes, Pixes, Death Cab, Kasabian, and Killers Headline Street Scene Fest
May 24, 2005

The sun has barely set on Coachella and another Cali Fest has been announced, with the Pixies and the White Stripes headlining. The Street Scene Festival, now in it's 22nd year, is boasting a killer line-up, with Snoop Dogg, the Flaming Lips, the Killers, Hot Hot Heat, Death Cab for Cutie, Kasabian, and a staggering number of other acts. According to Pitchforkmedia.com, the Festival is set to take place on July 29th and 30th at the Qualcomm Stadium in San Diego. It ain't Woodstock, but it'll do. Street Scene 05 RADIO PROMOTION

FM 94.9 INSIDERS ONLY

Hey Frank,

We don't usually like to start or spread unsubstantiated rumors, but we're pretty certain about this one.

If you've checked the website for Street Scene (www.street-scene.com) any time recently, you may have noticed that they're moving the date of Street Scene to the last weekend in July.

I have some other information regarding Street Scene that we thought was necessary to pass on to you. We've been told that on Thursday morning (think it's likely a small number of 2-day passes will be put on sale for just $40 through the Street Scene web site). If you're practical about buying tickets without knowing who's going to play, we've heard it in good authority that The Stone and the White Mages will both be at Street Scene. That alone should be worth the $40, plus, if you check Street Scene there have a few other bands listed as confirmed to play Street Scene.

Like I said, I can't be sure of all of this, but we're pretty convinced about here. Is it true or not? Check it out - www.street-scene.com

Thanks,

Mike Ness

Mike - FM 94.9 Emotions

PS If you've heard the rumors about Street Scene moving to Qualcomm Stadium, believe them. We know those are true and we're sure it's going to make for an even better event.
